Ask the Motor Medics®

Automotive Advice from The Under the Hood® Show

Dear Motor Medics,
My vehicle is starting to rust under the hood on my strut towers and under the back on the rear axle mounts and my shop tells me that in their opinion it is no longer safe to drive. It's a 2005 Dodge Caravan and other than the rust it looks great and only has 105k miles on it so I'm reluctant to part with it. How dangerous can it be and can it be repaired for a reasonable price. If I don't fix it what are my options?

James in Bartlesville Oklahoma

Dear James,
Up here in our home market we see a lot of these vehicles rusting as you describe but don't hear much about them in your condition down by you because there is less road salt and milder temps. When they get so bad that a shop feels that it's dangerous to drive it's time to take a serious look at the van. The strut towers do rust through and if they give way, and they can, you can lose control of the van. The same goes for an axle which breaks its mounts due to rust. Repairs can run thousands of dollars and we don't see many performed. Get the advice of someone local but if it turns out that it is time to remove it from the road for safety, a local auto recycler will be able to help you through the process of recycling your van.

Take care, the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,
I've got an issue with my fuel gauge in my 2008 Chevy Tahoe. All the other gauges work great, and the fuel gage does for the most part but ever since I had the instrument cluster replaced due to a failed speedometer and oil gauge. The gauge reads one eighth tank, but it runs out of gas at almost the exact time that the low fuel light comes on. I mean I have run out of fuel and ten seconds after the light appears. Once I was driving and saw the light pop on and just a few seconds later it died. I thought when I got the new instrument cluster, I would be done with the gauge issues. It used to turn the light on when I still had one quarter tank left.

Mark in Fort Morgan Colorado

Dear Mark,
The first thing we would do is to not let the tank go below half full. It seems obvious but it would solve the running out of fuel issue. As for the gauge issue we can solve that too. these vehicles have had a history of failed instrument clusters needing to be replaced. They are mass remanufactured and the quality, while very good, is not perfect. It sounds like they got the needle of the fuel gauge installed too high so that it reads fuller than it is. Your mechanic may be able to adjust it down a bit.

Take care, the Motor Medics
