Ask the Motor Medics®

Automotive Advice from The Under the Hood® Show

Dear Motor Medics,

My car runs pretty well, and I am not one to bring it in just to have it checked over once in a while. I am more of the kind of person who visits the shop once the car has broken down. After listening to your show, I am thinking I may be able to save some money by doing some preventative maintenance instead of waiting for major breakdowns. Recently my brakes started making some noise, but they don't do it every day. How can I tell the difference between needing brake repairs or if it's just a little noise; and if I wanted to be proactive on brake maintenance how often should they be checked? I have been in before for a squeak and they said they were fine, just a little rusty.

Thanks, Joanne in Madison Wisconsin.

Dear Joanne,

Routine maintenance will save you money on repairs. Regular inspections should be performed on safety items at each oil change and addressed as needed. These inspections are done for free at most shops so check around to see if yours does not offer this service. Inspect brakes annually and completely check them right away if there is a change in pedal travel or if noise is heard when applying them accompanied by grinding. Damp mornings can cause rust on the braking surfaces resulting in noise. This should go away after a couple of pedal applications and should not be felt in the pedal.

Take care, the Motor Medics.

Dear Motor Medics,

I am a longtime fan of yours and you have saved me countless dollars on repairs by teaching me how to do them myself, and when they are larger than I can handle you have taught me how to look for the best mechanic. I drive a 2012 Ford Explorer and I am getting ready to pull a trailer with it. I have owned it for several years and it has a hitch but no trailer light connector. This will be my first time pulling a trailer with this vehicle. Can I just tap into the taillights to connect my trailer light connector, or do I need something special? I don't want to cause a problem with the vehicle. I have also serviced the transmission and rear end prior to towing as well.

Thank you, Darren in Port Saint Lucy Florida.

Dear Darren,

Great idea you had on the proactive transmission and rear differential service. Depending on the size of the trailer and load you may think about a transmission cooler if the Explorer is not equipped with one. For the trailer wiring you need to make sure you do not overload the electrical system. On this vehicle and many others, a tow wiring kit is advised. Available at most auto parts stores this kit takes its power from the battery directly and uses relays activated by the vehicles lights to power the trailer lights preventing damage to the vehicles system..

Take care, the Motor Medics.

BRANDON VALLEY Journal

Ten members of Brandon Valley High's Class of 2024 donned caps and gowns last week for their midyear graduation. Journal editor Jill Meier was there to capture the milestone event in both words and photos.

District 2 legislators met with constituents on a below-zero Saturday morning to update them on the early happenings of the 2024 South Dakota Legislative session. We've got a recap from the first of two Legislative Coffees organized this year by the Brandon Valley Area Chamber of Commerce.

With elevated interest rates and high building costs, it should come as no surprise that building permits took a dip in 2023. BV Journal writer Tom A. Savage brings you a report on those numbers.

The Brandon VFW doled out four awards to members of the community last week. Check out to see who received the accolades.

And if it's Brandon Valley Lynx sports that's your bag, well, you're in luck! We have recaps from the Lynx bowling, girls' and boys' basketball, and girls' and boys' wrestling action from the week.

And there's a whole lot more news, sports and features. So, if you find yourself asking, "I wonder what's going on ..." it's time to subscribe to the Brandon Valley Journal! Give us a call at (605) 582-9999 to subscribe today so you, too, can be in the know.
