Ask the Motor Medics®

Automotive Advice from The Under the Hood® Show

Dear Motor Medics,

I am having issues with my 2009 Chevy Tahoe. When I try to turn the heat from hot to cold it sticks on the cold position on just the passenger side. If I use a scanner to reset and calibrate the doors once the engine is hot it will be fair but not great. I tried replacing the blend door motors on all the positions while I was in there, but it did no good. Sometimes I also hear a click sound when it operates. What could be going on?

Thank you, Ralph, in Carthage Texas.

Dear Ralph,

Summers coming so you are good. Just kidding but who needs heat in the summer right. We've repaired a large number of these, and we find door motors failed which you already addressed. Make sure the motors are an exact match as it is common to get the wrong ones as they look similar. Also make sure the doors move freely with the motors disconnected. You may find that you have a broken door or something inside of the case causing them to stick as noted by the noise you have on occasion. Any repairs to the doors will require complete removal of the dash assembly and some professional help to drain the ac system and recharge it. The job also takes many hours to perform. The parts needed if a door is broken are fairly reasonable, but the labor is where the cost is.

Take care, the Motor Medics.

Dear Motor Medics,

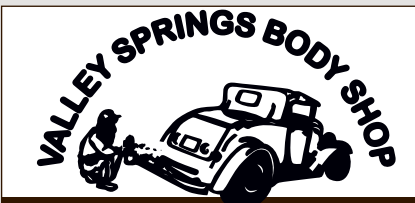

I have a 2005 Chevy truck, and the cruise control recently quit. I don't use it often so it could have been anytime in the past year. In addition to the cruise, I now have a problem with my lights blinking fast. I installed LED taillights and headlights, and front turn signals this year, and it seems to have started around the time I did this. I tried to install some resistors I found on Amazon, but it still does the same thing.

Thank you, Michelle in Cloquet Minnesota.

Dear Michelle,

Let's start with the cruise. Our first thought is that maybe it failed at the same time that the lights did. You mentioned so many light replacements that we wonder if you replaced that high-mount center stop lamp as well, which is common with the light kits? If you did, this is a probable cause. The resistance of an LED light is not correct for the cruise to operate unless the resistance is correct. Use a multi meter and see if it is the same as the original bulb. It must be the same. This also goes for the front and rear lights. Make sure that all the bulbs have the same resistance as the factory original ones. Many people buy resistor kits to make them function but if the total resistance is not the same as factory, then you can have a fast blink issue with the truck lights.

Take care, the Motor Medics.
