Ask the Motor Medics®
Automotive Advice from The Under the Hood® Show

Dear Motor Medics,
My Sierra Diesel truck has developed a fuel problem. I use the truck for towing daily and it now has over 200k miles on it. I replaced the fuel injectors about six months ago and the cylinder heads were replaced about 30k miles ago. The truck was running fine then started losing power over a few hundred miles. I took it to a dealership, and they said that the entire fuel system needs to be replaced because the pump has failed and sent metal through the entire fuel system. What do I really need to replace and the injectors be reused?
Thank you, Kevin in Fargo North Dakota.

Dear Kevin,
These trucks can develop a problem with the pumps which is more common when the truck has not had a fuel system additive uses as a protectant in every tankful of fuel. The additive provides lubrication which keeps the metal parts of the pump and injectors from wearing. When the pump starts wearing, slivers of metal will be dispersed throughout the system which will in turn damage any moving part by contamination. The only repair is to replace all the fuel system parts. The pump, injectors, fuel lines, tank, everything. Any parts left with contamination will cause a repeat and very expensive failure. Once you have repaired the system make sure to use a fuel additive and make sure that the pump always has a clean air free supply of fuel to prevent starvation damage.
Take care, the Motor Medics.

Dear Motor Medics,
I drive a 2009 Chevy van, and I have had multiple electrical failures which have been attributed to rodent damage. The car smells like mice at times, and I have had several wires repaired to fix this issue but more keep popping up. Recently the check engine light has been coming on and codes come and go. I think we have removed all the mice but I'm not sure. Is there any way to find electrical shorts quickly and keep the mice out?
Thank you, Joseph in Franklin Tennessee.

Dear Joseph,
Electrical issues when intermittent like yours are very troublesome. We would suggest first making sure that those mice are gone for good. Some wires are made using a bio-based covering, so they are very tasty for rodents. Many companies make products like Mouse Out which repel mice. It is sprayed directly on the wiring. As for finding electrical shorts quickly it is not that simple. Finding shorts takes time, which equals lots of money. Since many wires are hidden in dashes and in hard-to-reach areas, finding a short or a cut wire can be very hard. We recently repaired two vehicles for this very reason, which took many hours each. We found several damaged wires but once done everything worked perfectly. We then sprayed Mouse Out on all the effected areas and some other spots as mice often return to the same spot for whatever reason. Also keep all food out of the vehicle.
Take care, the Motor Medics.

Coming in tomorrow's

BRANDON VALLEY Journal

It was a “monumental heartbreak” for the Lady Lynx in the championship against O’Gorman at the AA State Basketball Tournament at The Monument in Rapid City over the weekend. This week, the Lynx boys head west as they take aim at winning their first state title since 2019. We put the spotlight on the team managers and their efforts behind-the-scenes.

South Dakota Legislators approved a 1.25 percent increase to K-12 public education, and the Journal gives you the details of what that means for the Brandon Valley School District. Plus, we’ve also got a report on the District’s 5-Year Plan.

In the Journal’s fifth installment of the “Understanding the Vote” series, writer Tom A. Savage details which of the two plans each city councilperson and the mayor favor.

And there’s a whole lot more. If you find yourself asking, “I wonder what’s going on ...,” it’s surely time to subscribe to the Brandon Valley Journal! Give us a call at (605) 582-9999 to subscribe today so you, too, can be in the know.
