Ask the Motor Medics®
Automotive Advice from The Under the Hood® Show

Dear Motor Medics,

I have a 2021 GMC Yukon with a 5.3 engine. The vehicle has 36k miles on it. The warranty expired last week at 36k, and it started making engine noise all the time at about 35,800 miles. I called the dealership where we purchased it, which is a few hundred miles away, and they said bring it in so we can check it. Well, the vehicle passed 36k before we arrived by just a bit, and they said the warranty had expired due to miles. They didn't say anything about towing it in since it was so close to the expiration, and I don't know who we talked to on the phone. We paid to have it diagnosed and they say it has failed lifters and a camshaft and that it will be very costly to repair. Is this a common thing and can they just cut us off right at exactly 36k?

Kensington in Albion Nebraska.

Dear Kensington,

Yes, this is very common and in fact we own one of these that we had to fix ourselves so we know how much labor is involved and how costly it can be. Some are so bad that the engine must be replaced at a much higher cost. As for the warranty. They sold you a 36k warranty, and that's what was agreed to. Talk with them or try a different dealership and plead your case. Sometimes they make slight exceptions.

Take care, the Motor Medics.

Dear Motor Medics,

We have a 2013 Ram 1500 truck with a misfire at 140k miles. We have worked on it ourselves replacing the coils, spark plugs, injectors and fuel pump and it still has a misfire. The scanner we have shows that the misfire is a p0300 Random Misfire and a p0304 and a po306. The misfire starts at higher rpm and at idle it runs perfectly smooth. Can you give us some ideas to look at next?

Matt in Livonia Michigan.

Dear Matt,

When diagnosing a misfire, we first verify with a scan tool that we have a mis the way you have. After getting info such as cylinder number, 4 and 6 in your case by the codes, we inspect those cylinders testing for compression and leakage. If those both are good, we move on to ignition and fuel. In the case of this engine, if all looks good but the misfires are still present, we will pull the valve covers and inspect the rockers to see if the valves are opening all the way. These engines have had some lifer and cam issues which when worn will not allow the valve to fully open, which makes the engine mis at higher rpm but not at idle or low speeds. The repair for this can be anywhere from a cam and lifter swap to an engine replacement if metal shavings have contaminated the engine. Good luck. We hope that you find something small needing repairs.

Take care, the Motor Medics.
