Ask the Motor Medics®
Automotive Advice from The Under the Hood® Show

Dear Motor Medics,
I’m having trouble with my 2014 Ford F150 missing again. The vehicle shakes when I am at a stop sign and sometimes when I accelerate going up a hill. The check engine light comes on and sometimes flashes as well. I have had two ignition coils replaced over the past year and they’re expensive! Could it be another one? I’d like your advice and thoughts on this truck. I really appreciate all your help guys.

Mark in Branson Missouri

Dear Mark,
The Ford F150 and most modern vehicles use what’s called coil-on-plug ignition which in simple terms means that the ignition coil is placed directly above the spark plugs and connected by a short rubber boot instead of using a plug wire. Using multiple coils allows the ignition system to work more efficiently when it is working correctly and eliminates spark plugs wires. When they fail they give the symptom you describe and cause poor mileage and rough running and possible power train and exhaust system damage. We often see all ignition coils fail within a short period of time to each other due to age and miles so be prepared to replace the other six coils. Due to the labor cost of working on them we often recommend replacing all at the same time to save labor costs even though the coils are not cheap. In the long run it will save a lot of cash over repeat labor repair costs.

Take care, the Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,
I have been a long-time listener to your radio show “Under The Hood” and have heard you talk about aftermarket cold air intake kits and how they can help your engine performance. I have a camper and a boat that I tow and don’t want to go changing a lot of major internal parts but want a little extra “go” when I step on it when I’m towing and also some better mileage. What are your thoughts?

Dan in Colorado

Dear Dan,
Cold Air Intake Kits are a great way to increase Horse Power and Torque and are an easy and fast way to do it. Don’t look for incredible gains but they will make a small difference and every bit counts when towing as you know. The kits are a bolt-on and can be done by most people at home in around an hour or less in most cases and they look great too. Get on the internet and compare the kits for your vehicle and look at the real numbers of what to expect from a kit before you decide to purchase one so you know what you are getting and are happy with what you are purchasing. They also give a great sound and a performance feel. As for mileage, don’t expect to see any increases there with any air filter or intake kit as they don’t provide that. They are for torque and HP increases only.

Take care, the Motor Medics
